Capturing Memories

Like all fun projects, motivated by a lunch conversation...

between Dick Carrigan and David Ritchie.

Capturing Memories

- How to capture memories of Fermilab?
- Must be easy for a person to provide.
- Must be within the very spartan resource constraints of the History and Archives Project.

Capturing Memories

- Provide for appropriate review.
 - No to generally accessible web pages, blogs, and/or distribution outside archivist staff prior to staff review.
- Provide for submission privacy by default.
- Provide rejection of bogus submissions.
 - No to Spam (at least from known addresses).
- Keep separate from day-to-day matters.

Capturing Memories

—Result—

FermilabMemories@fnal.gov

- In-bound only e-mail drop.
- Must subscribe (just takes a one-time e-mail to ritchie@fnal.gov) giving the address from which you will contribute.
- Can then submit memories (with picture attachments even!) as often as desired.

Capturing Memories

Ready to subscribe you now. Just need your e-mail address from which you will submit your memories...
